WHICH TEAM MEMBER ARE YOU IN A CTF?

The Crypto Guy

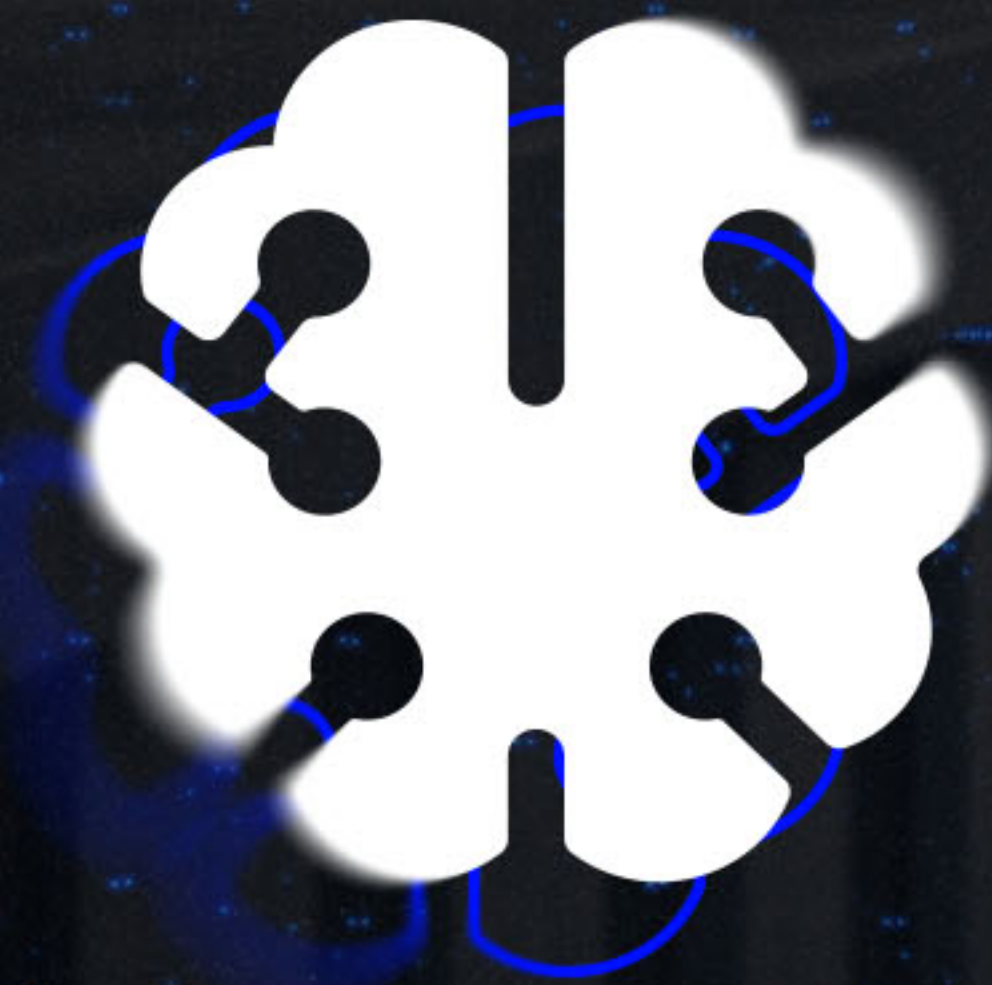

- Every team has that person.
- Thinks in hashes. Dreams in XOR.
- Will encrypt a Slack message just to ask if the coffee machine's working.
- Overthinks everything... and we love them for it.

The Pwn Wizard

- Breaks everything.
- Fixes nothing.
- Will casually exploit a zero-day in the lunchroom printer.
- Has 7 terminals open, all black background, no labels.

The Forensics Analyst

- Zooms into blurry screenshots like it's CSI.
- Can recover a flag from a memory dump and figure out what you had for lunch last week.
- Spends more time in hex than in meetings.

The Reverser

- Has 34 tabs open. All of them assembly.
- Hasn't blinked in hours.
- Doesn't speak much, but solves the hardest challenge before you even click "Start."
- Might be human. Might be AI. We're too scared to ask.

The Web Hacker

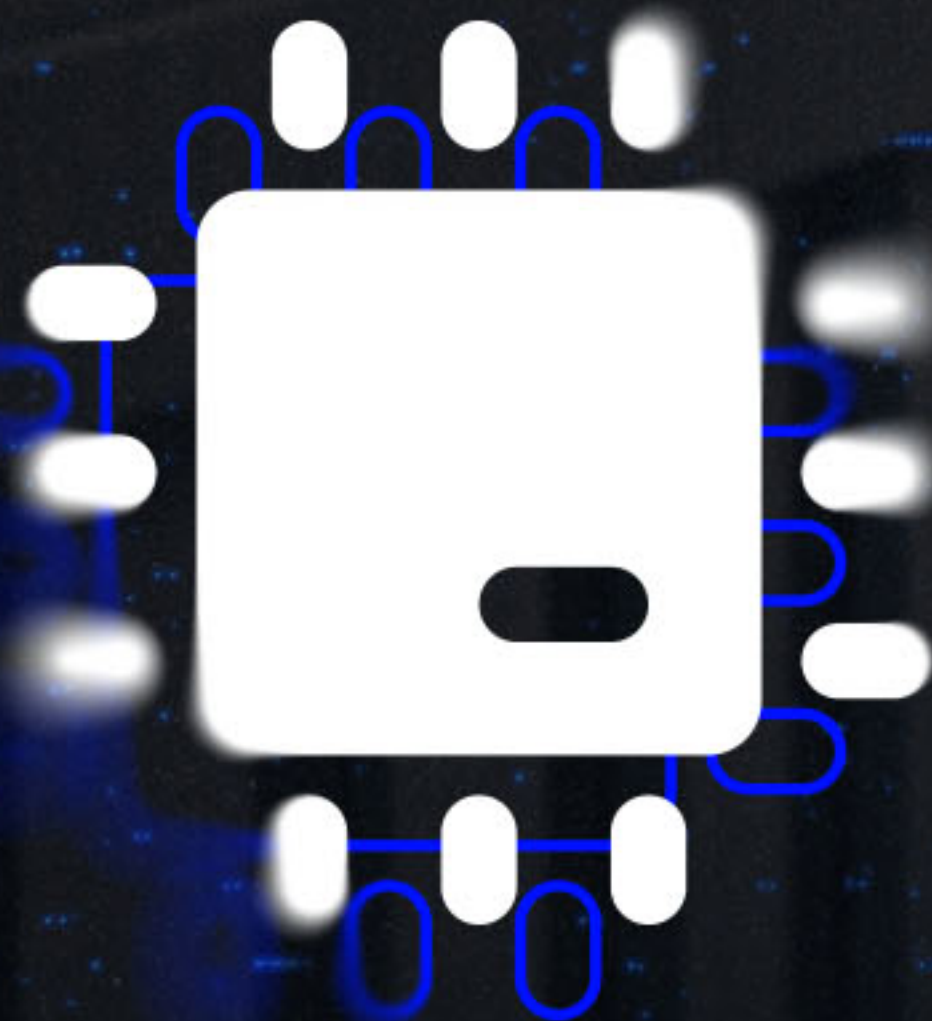

- "It's just input validation" -before solving half the challenges in 15 minutes.
- Browses Burp Suite like it's Instagram.
- Only uses dark mode. Obviously.

The Hardware Hacker

- Rewires their coffee machine to capture packets.
- Brings a soldering iron to the team briefing.
- If it has a port, they'll probe it.
- Might accidentally hack the company's thermostat.

The Organizer

- Doesn't write code. Doesn't need to.
- Keeps the team alive with spreadsheets, snacks, and strong opinions.
- Tracks progress. Calms the chaos.
- Probably the one who sent you this post.

Under pressure,
every role matters.
